Consignment Chic Arrives in Old Town

Modern Consignment Shop Current Boutique Opens Second Location in Alexandria

January 20, 2010 – (Alexandria, VA) – Designer wears, one-of-a-kind statement pieces, stylish shoes, and hand-picked accessories is just a sample of what modern consignment store Current Boutique offers at its second Northern Virginia location in the heart of Old Town, Alexandria.

Located in the trendy and revitalized West End of King Street, the sizable store has the look and feel of a high-end boutique. The store gives customers the best of both worlds with a selection of affordable chic new items from Los Angeles and New York designers and first rate designer consignment options. The store carries a variety of gently worn clothes from designers such as BCBG, Diane Von Furstenberg, Michael Kors, Marc by Marc Jacobs, Tory Burch to casual wear like Anthropologie, Lux, Free People, and J Crew. The store is known for their contemporary focus in keeping their inventory of quality, modern, trendy and timeless classic fashion. Customers can both buy and sell the latest fashions in which consigners make 50 percent of what the store prices the item.

“Old Town seemed like the perfect spot to open a second location,” said owner Carmen Lopez. “It’s filled with a nice mix of modern, budget conscious professionals who like quality items and need a store like Current to help with their revolving wardrobe. Consigning is becoming so popular because many women wear an outfit either once or twice and they don’t want their items just sitting in the closet, when they can recycle their designer wears and get money back on their investment. Customers that shop our store get to enjoy buying great designer clothes at affordable prices.”

Owner Carmen Lopez, a D.C. native, opened her first location in the hip Clarendon section of Arlington in April 2007 and has made a regional mark in the consignment business. She made the leap from working in corporate America for over eight years to something completely of her own making. With a passion for clothes and getting a great deal, prior to launching her business, she worked part-time at local boutiques to get her fashion fix. With Current Boutique, she created an outlet for a woman’s need for “retail therapy” while leaving them feeling stylish, guilt free, and a spot for fashionistas to recycle brand name frocks. Since opening her boutique, she has lent her style advice to numerous photo shoots, musicians, notable actresses and regional fashion shows.

The Old Town location kicked off its recent grand opening by holding an intimate opening reception, hosted by Fashion BS Radio.
